I Yvan Miklin, President & CEO of Aquila, to present at the 6th Annual IHPM EU/UK Health & Productivity Forum in London, UK.

Applying global employee health & fitness models in one of the largest telecommunications providers in a transitional economy of Croatia.

November 10th, 2010 -- London, United Kingdom -- I. Yvan Miklin, President & CEO of Aquila, will be a featured speaker at the 6th Annual IHPM EU/UK Health & Productivity Forum in London, UK to be held from November 30th, 2010 to December 1st, 2010.

Hosted by Unilever and sponsored by Novartis, IHPM's 6th Annual EU/UK Health & Productivity Forum is home to a true global leader in improving employee health as an investment in human capital. In this ideal setting on the Thames, among Intel, DuPont, Navistar International and British Petroleum, Aquila will be presenting a case study of the most progressive employee health & fitness program in South Eastern Europe -- VIPnet --second largest telecommunications provider in Croatia.

"We are honored to be a part of the 6th Annual IHPM EU/UK Health & Productivity Forum in London, UK", said Miklin, "Companies around the globe are realizing the benefits of successful on-site health & fitness programs. We are very happy to share a wonderful success story of VIPnet Corporate Employee Health & Fitness Programs and our milestones."

In 2006, Aquila EU, a subsidiary of Aquila US, designed and opened the largest comprehensive corporate employee health & fitness center in South Eastern Europe. Spanning on over 20,000 square feet, Aquila-VIPnet Wellness Center (<http://www.aquilaltd.hr/selectedwork.htm>) is a true example of a leading European regional corporation improving its employees health & fitness well-being.
